The Daily Press

HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 27TH, 1869.

HIS Excellency the GOVERNOR, has thought fit to declare that the Daily Press has laid against him the most serious charge, which it would be possible to bring against anyone, when the simple fact is, that nothing more has been done than to point out a mistake in accounts, which is as palpable as the oft quoted axiom that two and two make four. It is somewhat strange that His Excellency, who as a diplomatist, might be expected to know the value of the principle never to "make mountains out of molehills," should have jumped at the worst construction that could possibly be put upon the remarks recently made in these columns concerning the estimates; and it is certainly to be regretted that the severe light in which he has regarded the matter, has in a measure become contagious, and that the non-official members thought it right to enter a protest against it. The action of those gentlemen, under the impression which they were evidently influenced by, was no doubt, not only excusable, but praiseworthy. If, as appears very unfortunately, but very unaccountably, to have been believed, a direct accusation of "falsifying" accounts had been brought against His Excellency, the charge made would have been of so serious a nature that, at the very least, severe comment on it would have been justifiable. But it may be hoped that the sound sense of the non-official members of the Council will, when a plain statement of the real bearings of the matter is made, induce them, at least to modify the opinion expressed in the somewhat strong comments which were made by the Hon. Mr. GIBB on their joint behalf. What was said in these columns was simply—to quote from the summing up of the defects in the Estimates for 1870 as noticed in the leading article of the 24th instant—as follows:—

"The estimates for 1870 are altogether so indefinite and so unsatisfactory, commencing, as they do, with a clear blunder, being broken into by a 'Special Account,' which cannot be now explained, and, finally, in His Excellency's own opinion, being so vague that he cannot say whether they show a surplus of $111,000, or, only of $30,000, that it will be perfectly marvellous if, even in Hongkong, the supplies be voted on such accounts."

If, in the course of an argument, which was strong, because, there being no duly gazetted Additor General the occasion naturally appeared to be one, where it was right to look into Estimates closely, and not to hesitate to speak out, expressions were used that were considered more severe than was justifiable, it is an error to conclude that they were personal, seeing that they referred exclusively to a public act of His Excellency, and in no way trenched upon private matters. A little consideration is due, even when speaking of the comments in a public journal; and the same care should be taken not to exaggerate their bearing, as is claimed by those who feel aggrieved by them, with respect to their own actions. What was said with regard to His Excellency's statement on the estimates, was simply that the arguments contained in it were a specious upholding of his financial policy, and were so vague as to be calculated to mislead the public—a very different thing to saying he had "falsified accounts." In respect to the $160,000, which, in the financial statement, he says is due to the special fund, and which he does not carry forward as part of the Assets in hand on the first January, 1869, this was not characterised as a misrepresentation, but as will be seen by the extract above, as a "blunder;" and, though His Excellency explains, as it was of course natural to expect, how this blunder arose, let any impartial and calm man judge whether the explanation itself does not show that there was every reason for calling attention to the mistake. His Excellency, in his speech on Friday, states:—"The Special Fund was created, but the sum of money put down as due to the Special Fund, was not money to be refunded. It was a sum due to an actual deposit in the Bank: this money could not be expended without the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, and whatever balance had not been expended was now on deposit in the Bank, in precisely the same manner as the Judicial Fund. The Colony owed nothing to the Special Fund, except the residue." Starting from this statement, and turning to pages 2 and 3 of the Supplementary Estimates as given below, it appears that the $160,065.56, there set down as a liability of the Colony to the Special Fund, is part of the $250,000 deposited at the Chartered Banks at interest. But it is clear that pending the sanction of the Home Government to the Special Fund Account, this sum cannot be taken as a liability of the Colony, in the same way as expenses incurred for Lighting, Pensions, &c. It cannot be considered as certainly a liability of the Colony, until duly passed and sanctioned. This is the main point of exception taken to the accounts; but there are two others, which, it must be admitted, are of weight. First, it would have been well that the amount due to the Play House Fund should have set forth as an individual deposit at the Bank; and, next, in the preliminary statement to the Estimates of 1870, this amount should have been set forth as a portion of cash in hand, but unavailable for use. The whole objection taken to the accounts is of the simplest nature, namely that, while it is stated the public cannot see clearly how this amount of $160,065.56 arises, without having cognisance of the "Special Account," and while it is admitted that that account is not passed and sanctioned, but only under consideration of the Home Government, the amount is lumped with others as a fixed deposit, and is thus assumed to be so passed and sanctioned. Until this has taken place, this sum should be considered as cash in hand but unavailable for use, not as a fixed and sanctioned liability. If this reasoning is correct, then the "Financial Estimate for 1869," with which the Estimates for 1870 are prefaced, should be set forth as:—

Excess of assets over liabilities on the 1st January, 1869	$297,430.60
Less amount not available for use, being the sum estimated as passable to Special account, and now pending sanction of Her Majesty's Government	$160,065.56
Actual amount of Assets available for use	$137,365.04

It might, of course, be a matter of opinion under ordinary circumstances, whether so formal a statement need be made; but, considering that His Excellency states that the details of the "Special Fund" are still under the consideration of Her Majesty's Government, it is submitted that, until the decision of the Home Government is known, this sum cannot, without begging the important question whether the Special Account will be passed or not, be taken as a Liability.

This is the sum total of the defect that was pointed out, and unless there is some very singular mistake in the calculation, it appears clear that it is an error calling for animadversion, though, of course, like any other error of the kind, it is only right to consider it occurred inadvertently, and nothing to the contrary was said with regard to it. The substance of the whole argument used was simply that it was an error to place the sum of $160,065.56, being an "Amount due to the Fund arising from Play-House Licences," as a "liability" of the Colony, as, properly speaking, it could not be considered such until the "Special Fund" had been passed by the Home Government. Pending that event, the sum can only be looked upon as an amount in suspense, and, in strictness, it should have been brought forward in the Estimates for 1870, as an amount in hand, but unavailable for current expenditure it being designed to pass it under sanction of the Home Government, to the "Special Account," and that sanction having not yet been received. That the above view of the subject is well founded, will easily be seen when it is considered how anomalous a thing it must be for the Colony of Hongkong to recognise a sum as an actual liability, which is not so properly speaking before an account, of which the public know nothing, has been passed by the Home Government. His Excellency pointed out that the Colony and the Legislative Council have nothing whatever to do with the Gambling money or the "Special Account." No doubt, however unpalatable, this assertion is correct but it will, at least, be admitted that neither Council nor Colony is called upon to admit as a liability any sum of money with respect to the Special Account, until such sum has received the sanction of Her Majesty's Government.

The news given elsewhere from a correspondent, as to the state of the northern Tea Markets, is of great significance. It would appear to indicate that the cry of a short third crop was simply got up with a view to inducing purchases and raising prices. It is also confirmatory of the view expressed in the Overland Trade Report, of the error of looking for a short export this year, seeing the rate at which purchases have been made in the north, since the opening of the markets.

It seems that the complaint which the Hon. Mr. ROWETT brought forward at the meeting of the Legislative Council, with reference to the Surveyor-General having endeavoured to stop the erection of a building in Hollywood Road, on the ground that the front elevation was not sufficiently handsome, was not so unfounded as His Excellency the Governor's reading of the note on the subject would make it appear. It will be recollected that, note was to the effect that the Surveyor-General "approved the building but could not approve of the front elevation," and that His Excellency considered the latter part of the sentence merely as species of comment on the design. It appear however that the action which the Surveyor-General had taken in regard to the matter, shows that the objection was made in all seriousness; and it is to be hoped that so trivial a plea will not, in future, be allowed to be made, seeing that the elevation was quite in accordance with the neighbourhood, where the houses were to be erected.

The new Ordinance altering the time of sitting of the Supreme Court, is notified in Saturday's Gazette, as coming into force from that day.

The same paper gives notice that the Queen's Exequatur, empowering A. BIMBCKE, Esq., to act as a Consul at Hongkong for the North German Confederation, received Her Majesty's signature on the 7th August, 1869.

Reliable information has been received from Macao per fast boat, to the effect that the N. G. bark Apenrade, had been attacked by pirates on the evening of the 24th instant, while lying at anchor quite near Macao Roads, becalmed. The Captain was reported to be wounded, but not very seriously, and one of the crew is missing. The pirates robbed the cargo, stripped the cabin of every article of any value it contained, and caused considerable damage to ship's rigging. The vessel was safely at anchor in Macao Roads where this information was dated, Saturday afternoon. It will be remembered that the Apenrade was loaded at Whampoa for New York, and left for her destination on the 23rd, intending to call in at Macao on her way down the river, and out to sea.

THE NORTHERN TEA MARKETS.

A correspondent writing from Shanghai by the steamer Albion, under date of the 22nd inst., states:—Considerable commotion has been produced in the Tea market, by the news this day to hand from Hankow, to the effect that there is a much larger quantity of the third crop coming forward than was expected, or, more accurately speaking, that a larger third crop has been manufactured and is about to be placed on the market. There seems little room to doubt that the total export will be close upon, if not equal to, last year's; and people, who have brought on the assumption that it would be 10 millions or so under, will doubtless have to suffer considerable loss.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

September 24th.

BEFORE J. RUSSELL, Esq.

REMANDED CASE.

Kwok-a-yow, on the charge of robbing his foster-father, was again brought before the Bench, and the case was disposed of as follows:—The $93 to be handed back to the father, and prisoner discharged, in virtue of the power vested in the Magistrate under Ord. 7, of 1865, sec. 51.

A MISTAKE.

William Davis charged Fun-a-yow, of Namboi, a money-changer, with fraud. He stated that he knew the defendant as a money-changer near the Stag Hotel, and occasionally changed dollars at his stall. At 3.30 p.m. on the 24th, he was passing the defendant's stall, and shook hands with him, defendant asked if he wanted any change. He said he might as well have some, and gave him two dollars, the defendant giving him some small coin, which, without counting or looking at, he put into his pocket. Some time afterwards, he found that the small coins were of various foreign coinage, American, Dutch, French, and some sixpences, none of which any one would take. He then went to defendant to get ten cent pieces, but defendant denied all knowledge of the transaction.

The defendant stated that the complainant was half drunk, and he shook hands with everybody, and wanted him to change a dollar for him, but the dollars were light and refused. Where the defendant did get change, he did not know, but sometime afterwards, the defendant came to him asking to give him ten pieces for the coin he produced.

Inspector Ambrose stated the complainant had evidently been drinking too much. Discharged.

ASSAULT.

Tong-a-chick, of Hai-ping, chair-coolie to Mr. Russell, was charged by I.C.P. No. 80, as follows: Abbass stated that on the afternoon of the 24th instant, he was on special duty at the Government Offices. Many chairs being around the office, in consequence of the Legislative Meeting, he had some difficulty in regulating them, and keeping the coolies quiet. He had turned away two of Mr. D'Almeida's coolies for playing, when he was asked by one of Mr. Russell's coolies, why he did so. Having told him to go away, he pushed him, upon which defendant interfered, took hold of his uniform coat, and struck him on the arm. He took defendant into custody, and defendant resisted, and while doing so struck his nose against the wall.

Defendant, in his statement, accused the constable of being drunk, giving that he interfered with two chair-coolies who were playing, and then without any cause he came to him and his fellow-coolie, and struck and pushed them, tearing his jacket and making his nose bleed.

Inspector Ambrose, who took the charge, stated the constable was perfectly sober, not the least sign of drink was apparent. Fined $1, or in default two days' imprisonment.

CUTTING AND WOUNDING.

John Brown, of the West Indies, a watchman, at Pokfolum, was stated by Inspector Gray to have been brought to the West Point station, charged with shooting at and wounding a Chinese female named Ching-a-sun, who was sent to the Government Civil Hospital, that the wound she had so received might be treated, and as she was thus unable to appear, he produced a certificate from Dr. Cochrane, and applied for the remand of the prisoner until Wednesday next. Remanded until the 29th instant.

PETTY LARCENY.

Wong-a-hong, a hawker of pears, charged Daniel Torode, a seaman, of the British barque Dryden, with taking one of his pears, as he passed by his stand near the Government Civil Hospital. Upon asking defendant to pay him, he refused, and kicked him in a most dangerous part.

Tang-ah-kai, an office coolie at the Military Store, corroborated the complainant's statement, and said that defendant also threatened to strike him, when he asked "what was the matter?" Defendant stated that he had taken up a pear, asking how much it was, and when he was told it was three cents, he said no more, but walked on. The complainant followed him wanting to get the pear from him, and struck him on the back. He said, "I did just kick out, and perhaps touched him," and was then surrounded by about one hundred Chinamen, who seemed as if they wanted to give him a licking, and upon that demonstration, he then said he would pay.

Fined $5, or, in default, 14 days' imprisonment with hard labour; also, to pay $5 compensation for injuries to defendant, or, in default, 14 days' with hard labour.

FEMALE INFIRMITY.

Shin-a-ching, a married woman, whose husband is away from the colony, stated that on the 23rd instant she asked Wong-a-lon, also a married woman, for $4, which she owed to her, on which she replied that she had no money, and accused her of telling something to her husband for which he had beaten her, and that then defendant beat her and tore her clothes. They lived in the same house.

Defendant replied that she did not beat her, but that on the day named complainant was gambling with three or four others, and that she had told her it was unlawful to gamble in this country, upon which she got vexed, and struck her on the face with her hand, and tore her clothes.

Sum-a-kew, a widow, said that hearing a noise, she went over from the opposite side to their house, and saw both complainant and defendant fighting, both on the ground, and their clothes torn, and one just as violent as the other.

Defendant and complainant to find security, one surety each, in $10, for three months, to keep the peace towards each other.

LARCENY.

Chun-a-fook, a coolie, having been charged by Chun-a-soon, a shop coolie, with having lifted a pair of shoes, which he had placed without his shop to dry, and run off with them, made the following defence:—He owed complainant 150 cash, he asked him to pay, and having no money, complainant seized his shoes, of which he repossessed himself by a snatch, and then ran away. Two months' imprisonment with hard labour.

STATISTICS OF CRIME IN HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI.

Captain Superintendent Deane in a memorandum to H.E. the Governor, published in Saturday's Gazette, very ably refutes the misstatements on the above subject recently made by Mr. Alexander Johnston, Secretary to Municipal Council at Shanghai, in a letter to the London and China Express, which was recently noticed in these columns. Mr. Deane points out first that the total foreign population of Hongkong including seamen and soldiers, has for years been more than double that assumed by Mr. Johnston, and was by last Census shown to be 7,699, while Mr. Johnston states it to be only 3,551 in 1868; secondly, Mr. Johnston's assumption that the Chinese portion of the Police Force is useful only against natives is declared to be an error, the combined force having the superintendence of the whole of the island, and the proportion of Hongkong Police to the total population being 1 to 191, and of the foreign Police to foreign residents 1 to 70; thirdly, Mr. Deane very justifiably points out the different natures of Shanghai and Hongkong, there being in Shanghai only a small level and compact space, and a native population thereon to be watched, whose comparatively peaceful and docile character enables them to be governed with peculiar facility, especially as the Chinese authorities lend material assistance on the spot, while, in Hongkong, there is no such help, and the resident population is far larger than that under supervision of the Anglo-American Council at Shanghai, hills and valleys in addition to the town having also to be patrolled, and criminals constantly resorting to the Colony from the Canton Province.

He shows, in conclusion, by a careful analysis, that of the 1,033 convictions of foreigners in 1868, spoken of by Mr. Johnston, the total percentage was not 20, as stated by Mr. Johnston, but 13.2, and that the number of convictions under the heads given by Mr. Johnston was not 1,033, but 331, of which 255 were cases of common assault or disturbance on board ship, and that under piracy, kidnapping, and murder, which Mr. Johnston puts forward so prominently as three of the classes of "serious" crime committed by foreigners in Hongkong, not even one case occurred. He further shows that leaving trivial offences out of the calculation, the crimes committed by foreigners will be found to have been 1.5 per cent. to the population of Shanghai and 1 per cent. to that of Hongkong. Mr. Deane characterises Mr. Johnston's statement as "a wanton distortion of statistical returns."

THE STATE OF THE STREETS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

SIR,—If I am not mistaken, there appears in His Excellency the Governor's Budget, a certain amount, and not a very small one, for the maintenance of roads, streets, &c., and for the salary of a Surveyor-General. Now, I should like to know whether all the streets of Hongkong can claim a share of this amount, and a portion of the Surveyor-General's time; or if the main-streets, such as Queen's Road, Praya, Road to the Peak, &c., are the only ones entitled to repair and attention. There is a street called Stanley-street, a back street, and I have observed that, although the Eastern part of it is inhabited by Europeans, still, during many years, this street has altogether escaped the attention, or been ignored, by the Surveyor-General. At the corner of d'Aguilar-street, leading to Stanley-street, there is a drain, from which a most offensive smell ascends, and one has to hurry past the corner to escape a mouthful of it. For months that part of the street has been, and is now, obstructed by big granite stones, and further on; you will find bits of the original boulders still sticking up in the middle of the road; the pavement is very bad; and strange it is that people who live in that street have not yet complained about it.

I consider it dangerous to pass through Stanley-street in the day, you may break your leg against the boulders; at night, the glimmer of the two gas lamps, for there are only two from the corner of d'Aguilar-street to Pottinger-street, is not sufficient to light the street, and one may be easily attacked from behind by a stealthy foe.

Last night, at 7 P.M., the lamps had not been lighted, while those in other parts of the town were already lighted at 6.15 P.M.

I think it but fair to those who live in Stanley-street, and who pay heavy taxes, that something should be done in the way of repairing and lighting it.

The street would afford a capital field for the labours of the Inspector of Nuisances.

Yours faithfully,

X.

Hongkong, 24th September, 1869.

SHANGHAI.

The steamer Venus, which arrived on Saturday, brought news from the above port to the 20th instant. There was a severe storm on the 16th instant, which is thus described in N. C. Daily News:—

Early this morning, this neighbourhood was visited with what the Chinese call a Pau-fung, or burst of wind, and while it lasted, it was very strong; but, fortunately, these gusts are of short duration, and invariably to an observant eye give ample warning. The unusual clearness of the atmosphere on the 13th instant, with the barometer at 30.14 (at this time of the year), was significant of coming bad weather. On the 14th, however, the aspect was overcast and watery, with wind of unequal strength, and barometer gradually falling. This kept on till about 2 A.M. (15th), when for a time it blew a hard gale, accompanied with violent squalls and rain; and at 5.30 A.M. the barometer stood 29.40, having fallen from 29.65 to the above low range in one hour and a half. Since then the wind has been very variable from E. by S. to W.S.W., with bursts and calms alternately, occasional showers and a dull cloudy sky. Barometer steady at 29.85 at 6 P.M.

The above paper mentions that a serious robbery was committed at the Astor House, from some Japanese gentlemen who were staying there. As they were on the point of going to the theatre, they found that one of their boxes had been broken open, and $2,300 abstracted. Information was at once given to the police, who suspected the servants. From the position of the room, in an inner part of the house, it seems impossible that any one else could have effected the robbery, so early in the evening.

The Recorder gives the following account of the subsequent capture of the robber:—The perpetrator of the robbery of $2,000 from some Japanese who were residing at the Astor House, has, we are glad to learn, been discovered. It was evident that the robbery had been effected by some one living in the house, and suspicion fell on the native servants and on a Portuguese interpreter in the employ of the Japanese. As the latter individual was about to leave the hotel to accompany his employers on board of the Costa Rica he was arrested, and on being searched a part of the money was found in his boxes, and the rest on his person. On being removed to the Hongque Police station, he declared that he had taken poison. Dr. Macgowan was at once summoned, and applied the stomach pump, and some strong emetic, soon removing his interesting patient from danger. It must be a matter of congratulation to the public, as well as to Messrs. Baker & Co., that the suspicion which fell on the servants of the hotel have been removed.

The above paper thus describes the departure of the last Pacific Mail steamer:—

The crowd of residents of all nations and tongues who went down to the P. M. S. S. Co.'s wharf on Saturday morning, to take leave of their friends going by the Costa Rica was even greater than that assembled to wish a farewell to Mr Consul Markham, and those who left by the New York. Punctually at 11 o'clock the bell for departure sounded, when a call was made for Mr. Seward, who on his appearance was greeted with a hearty round of cheering which he gracefully acknowledged.

The Albion, which arrived yesterday morning, extends the above dates to the 22nd inst. The following later items are taken from the Shanghai Recorder:—

The programme of the Autumn Race Meeting has been issued. The Races are fixed for the 3rd, 4th, and 5th November, seven events on the first and second and six on the third day. There is to be a Stand Plate for all horses, and a hurdle race on the first day, the latter of which, as being the first attempt in Shanghai at hurdle jumping for ponies, will no doubt create a great deal of interest. There is also to be the Champion Sweepstakes, a forced entry for all winners, on the third day.

The yacht race which has been under contemplation for some time, came off on the 20th instant, and was won by the Vision in 5h. 7m. 31s., the Vision being second in 5h. 8m. 55s., Falcon third, 5h. 11m. 48s. It is pronounced one of the best contested sailing races that has ever taken place at Shanghai.

At a meeting of the members of the Shanghai Club, which took place on the 21st instant, it was resolved that the proposal of the shareholders for keeping the club open in all its branches, except the boarding department, until the 31st of October, be accepted, after which date it be closed by the present proprietary, and that the chairman of the meeting be requested to invite the shareholders of the club and subscribers to the Recreation Fund to confer together, for the elaboration of some scheme by which the Recreation Fund can take over the Club and work it for the benefit of the members. A proposal has made by Mr. Groom on behalf of the Recreation Fund shareholders to the effect that in liquidation of the Recreation Fund loan, the shareholders hand over the Club building and furniture to the members, they taking the responsibility of Dr. Barton's loan and all other claims on the shareholders, the annual payments on account of which would amount to about Tls. 6,000.

PEKING.

Recently as a gentleman of considerable prominence in the foreign community was passing along one of the principal streets of the Tartar city, on horseback, a native with a syringe suddenly squirted a stream of water over him. The case will be reported to Sir Rutherford. Another foreigner, a missionary, recently had a brickbat sent after him by an unseen hand.

The Austrian Embassy has left here, having succeeded after many vexatious delays in getting a treaty signed. An unexpected difficulty cropped up towards the last. The Chinese refused to give to the Emperor of Austria the same title of "Wong-to," which they accord to their own sovereign; but Baron von Petz very properly declined to continue negotiations on a basis so injurious to the dignity of his nation, and the Chinese finally gave in, as they no doubt intended to do from the first. The terms of the treaty have not been made public, but it is understood that the Austrians have agreed to appoint no mercantile Consuls, and that they have waived any special provision relative to missionaries.—News Letter.

NANKING.

One of the river barriers to keep out the Yangtsze waters, showing signs of caving in, the people were gathered together by the beating of gongs to aid the authorities in saving the country from devastation. Working thus day and night, a neighboring mandarin, who heard the inspiring tones of the gongs, collected his retainers about him, and hastily went to see what was the row. Not knowing the circumstances, and believing it to be a free fight, he ordered his men to fire into the crowd. A general tumult and flight took place, in which all hands were reported missing. The waters now left to themselves gained the mastery over the barriers, and soon flooded the country, to the extent of many thousand acres.—Ibid.

JAPAN.

The P. & O. steamer Madras, Capt. Davies arrived this morning, with dates from Yokohama to the 18th instant. The local papers are full of the festivities in connection with the Duke of Edinburgh's visit. H.R.H. has been received by the Mikado upon a footing of entire equality. At the official reception, both stood up and at the more private interview afterwards, the greatest courtesy and good feeling prevailed, H.R.H. presenting the Mikado with his own hand with a magnificent diamond snuff box, and giving also to the Imperial courtiers and state officers a number of jewels which were highly appreciated.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

(North China Daily News.)

The programme of the Duke of Edinburgh's movements, issued some months ago by the Foreign-office, has proved singularly unreliable so far as China is concerned. It was there announced that he would go from Yokohama to Tientsin, visit Peking, make a short call at Shanghai, and go from hence to Hongkong. Now his visit to Peking has become doubtful, Shanghai is struck out of the programme, and the two smallest places on the coast, Chefoo and Amoy, are substituted. The first arrangement was by far the best, and the change is to be regretted. It is a pity for his own sake that, after travelling round the world to visit China, the Prince should carry away no better impression of the country than is to be gained from the fishing villages of Yentai and the little island of Amoy. The visit to Peking or Shanghai might not have been attended with any great pleasure; but it is worth while, when visiting a place, to see it in its best aspect. At Peking he would have seen a good specimen of a native city, and at Shanghai he would have gained a more favourable impression than Chefoo or Amoy are likely to convey of the magnitude of foreign interests in China.

For what reason Shanghai is to be passed over, we are yet unaware. Perhaps the Duke of Somerset has desired the Galatea to avoid our "sink of iniquity," out of regard for the morals of her crew. But the erasure of Peking from the programme is more easily explained. Sir Rutherford Alcock, we believe, opposed it; telegraphed home to that effect, and received an answer approving his suggestion. We are of course unaware of His Excellency's motives for advising the change, but we think it is to be regretted, and are glad to hear from Japan, that there is just a chance that His Royal Highness will persevere in his original intention. If we believed the rumour which has got abroad, that Prince Kung had refused to receive him, we might think otherwise. But our own information casts discredit on this statement, which seems unlikely in itself. The only point is that if he do go, he should go in a manner becoming his rank. Rumour attributes to Sir Rutherford a wish that, if he come at all, he should come privately, and to Sir Henry Keppel a conviction that he should travel with all possible eclat. And we entirely agree in the latter view. A visit to Peking by a son of the Queen of England, with a guard which should impress the Chinese with a sense of his country's powers, would be politically useful; while his visit as a private individual would be politically injurious. The Chinese don't understand incognitoes; they would regard a Prince in a shooting jacket, unattended by a retinue, as an embodiment of paltriness, and would estimate the importance of his country by the same standard. But a Prince attended by two hundred well-armed men would be to them the son of a powerful monarch of a great country, and England's prestige would gain as much in the one as it would lose in the other case. A Chinese Minister of State would not move with a less retinue, and the Chinese people will not understand a Prince travelling with less pomp and show than one of their own magnates. We say, therefore, by all means let the Duke of Edinburg visit Peking, but let him do so in a manner befitting his high rank and the greatness of the country of which he will be considered by the Chinese, a representative.

THE CHECK ON THE BURLINGAME MISSION.

(Shanghai Recorder.)

It has long been suspected by those who have given themselves the trouble to observe the current of events connected with China that the Burlingame Mission would receive a check at the Court of Berlin; such was whispered as far back as the time when the Mission started. It was stated by men, who ought to be considered competent authorities, that whatever other powers should do, it was simply an impossibility for Prussia to receive the Ambassador from China, as such a course would be contrary to all etiquette; Prussia having sent her Minister to Peking, and he not having been received. It might, of course, be thought that so eminently reasonable a view of the matter as this would have been adopted generally, and that the other great Powers—America, England, and France—would not have received a Minister from a Court which had refused to receive their Representatives on the same footing as is customarily done by other nations. Such, however, from what cannot but be thought very mistaken ideas with respect to the Chinese, was not the line of action adopted. It is satisfactory therefore to find by the last accounts from home, that Prussia has not disappointed the hopes that have been formed of her. It appears also that Mr. Burlingame is not required at St. Petersburg, a fact which might very well have been anticipated, as the Russians have never identified themselves with the general policy of other foreign nations in China, which they have regarded—as in point of fact it is—as directed specially against their own policy of conquest and annexation.

But leaving Russia out of consideration, it is yet a very severe blow to the success of the Mission, that it has not been received by one of the most powerful nations in Europe. It started off at an enormous pace, but has at last been brought up by a very sudden and very unpleasant stoppage. It is perfectly clear that if only one Treaty power firmly stands out against Chinese obstinacy, exclusiveness, or retrogression, the main policy of the Mission from which the Celestials expected such great things, must be completely frustrated. In the graphic style that is peculiar to him, Mr Burlingame defined this part of his programme as "the unification of the whole world in China's interests." It is very annoying and very awkward if the whole world will not see it; but such undoubtedly seems to be the case; and is likely to prove the weak point in the Chinese tactics of playing off one nation against the other, and maintaining her old stand-still attitude. The only way in which China can unite the nations in her interests is by showing something like an honest desire to carry out her obligations, and to enter upon a reasonable amount of progress. By this means she might make them all her friends. By her present course she is simply making them, more or less, openly her enemies.

THE GOVERNMENT AND THE POLICE.

Before the Session closes it is imperative that the attention of the House of Commons should again be called to the question which has raised in regard to the relations between the police and the public. Mr. Bruce's extraordinary speech has given an importance and gravity to the subject which can hardly be exaggerated. His theory of the jurisdiction of the Home-office as a court of appeal cannot be allowed to pass without challenge. It strikes at the very first principles of justice, and establishes a precedent of the most dangerous and intolerable kind. If there was one rule more sacred and unquestionable than another in English jurisprudence, it was, we imagined, this, that no one could be twice tried for the same offence, and that when once an acquittal had been pronounced by a competent court, every one was bound to assume the innocence of the accused. Mr. Bruce not only reverses this rule, but does so in the most outrageous way. In effect, he asserts that the three bank clerks were actually guilty of the disorderly conduct of which the magistrate pronounced them to be innocent, and that the five witnesses who bore testimony on their behalf committed perjury. He makes this declaration publicly from his place in Parliament, with all the authority attaching to his official position and his presumed access to the best information. He supports it by an assurance that the magistrate had not the means of knowing the whole truth, and that he has in his own possession evidence of a more perfect and conclusive character than was produced in the police-court. Further, he tries to trap an independent member into an incautious admission that this secret evidence, unsupported by oath, untested by cross-examination, given by one he knows not whom, proves the case against the young men whom the magistrate declared to be innocent. Mr. Eykyn, fortunately, was too wary, and had too keen a sense of justice to allow himself to fall into the snare. But this does not lessen the gross impropriety of the Secretary's conduct. In our whole experience—and this is the universal opinion one hears on every side—we never recollect so monstrous an abuse of ministerial authority. Having thus passed judgment on the clerks as rioters, and on the witnesses as perjurers, Mr. Bruce refuses to produce the depositions on which this condemnation rests, because it would be "unjust to the young men." This is the first time we ever heard of the injustice of allowing an accused person to see the evidence on which a verdict of guilty is returned against him, and to have an opportunity of sifting and, if he can, answering a contemporary, "by what process Mr. Bruce could inflict a more cruel wrong on these young men than by publicly declaring in his place in Parliament that he withheld certain secret documents because they were calculated most seriously to affect their characters?" For our own part we have hesitation in pronouncing it cruel and unjustifiable in the last degree. The question, in short, has now become one of confidence in the Minister even more than in the police. On no conceivable theory can Mr. Bruce's position be sustained. Whoever may be in fault, the police on the one hand or the young men on the other, the Home Secretary has no right to interpose between the guilty persons and justice. Mr. Bruce practically admits that the evidence before Mr. Knox justified an acquittal, since he rests his defence of the police on the secret depositions taken subsequently. But it is at ing it. "I should like to know," says the father of one of the clerks in a letter to least strange that the police, having from the 1st to the 14th ult. to complete their case, should have omitted any material evidence, and at any rate the public have a right to demand an authoritative sifting of the matter.—Pall Mall Gazette.

FATAL SOMNAMBULISM.

A old gray haired man, 72 years of age, named David Hunter, (says the Chicago Journal of July 22nd,) long a resident of the West Division, met with a fatal accident while sleep-walking at an early hour this morning. The old gentleman is proprietor of a boarding house, located on the upper floors of the newly erected brick block between Peoria and Sangamon, on West Madison-street. For many years past he had been in the habit of walking in his sleep, and on several occasions has in consequence of this habit met with severe accidents. On last evening he retired, as usual, quite early. Between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning, the inmates of the house were suddenly awakened by the noise of a fall, and searching for the cause, found the bleeding and almost inanimate body of the old man at the foot of a high staircase leading from the street to his abode. The face of the man presented a ghastly and horrible appearance. It was found that the lower jaw had been broken and fallen upon the throat. His upper jaw was also terribly mutilated; his nose was broken in several places and deep scars were visible all over his face. Several bones in his body were also found broken. At last accounts he was fast sinking, and ere this comes to the readers has undoubtedly expired.

SHOCKING OUTRAGE ON A GIRL BY HER LOVER.

A young girl named Caroline Ketchum, 17 years old, was stabbed three times in the City Park, New Orleans, on the 24th July, by one Salvador Carlotte, because she threatened to prevent him from marrying another. He consented to spare her further wounds when she had sworn never to tell who had stabbed her; and leaving her to die he hurried away. The girl managed to drag herself to a police station, where her wounds were pronounced mortal. She was removed to a hospital. To the repeated solicitations of Captain Cain she refused to reveal the name of her assassin; but in her delirium she uttered his name. On this clue the Chief Officer, Marks, set out to arrest the murderer. After a long and patient search they found him, apparently asleep, in the Dryades Market. The Chief at once proceeded to the residence of Recorder Becker, and, getting a search warrant, started for his residence. Here his clothes were found. The pants and shoes were besprinkled with blood but his coat had just been washed by his mother. Indeed the clothes were found under her arm just as she was in the act of leaving the house with them. On awaking from one of her fitful slumbers she asked the Chief, whom she recognised, if he had brought "him with him," meaning Carlotte. "No," said the Chief, "but I will to-morrow." "Oh, do," she said, "I want to see him. You won't punish him, will you?"

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

HONGKONG, MONDAY MORNING.

The market for Bengal drug had been steady during the last two days, with a moderate demand from Chinese quarters, the stock however, is much reduced, and in few hands. The following are the ruling prices:—New Patna, $562½ cash, $565 on credit, and $561½ on time of the 9th sales to arrive, and it could only be got from small speculators, actual importers of drug are quite out of the market, as sellers even at better rates; New Benares, $547½ little doing; Old Patna, $545 little doing; Malwa, $675, wanted by the natives, but none to be had, market quite bare of stock, even a higher price will be given for really good drug.

* This is the sum concerning which exception has been taken.

Beyond reporting the sales given below there is nothing to remark with regard to the condition of the market for Manufactured Imports on Saturday last. Quietude continues to be the prevailing and in fact only characteristic. Sales for the past two days amount to 3,000 pieces 8/4 Grey Shirtings at $2.89 to $2.9?, 500 pieces 7lbs. to arrive at $2.57, 850 pieces 8½lbs. at $3.87½ to $3.80, 500 pieces 52 reed White Shirtings at $2.52½, 1,800 pieces English Drills at $4.85, 1,000 dozens Handkerchiefs at 72½ cents, 110 pieces Turkey Red at $3.00, 600 pieces long Ells at 7.72½, 100 pieces Dutch camlets at $25.50, 50 bales No. 10/24 Yarn at $130 and 30 bales No. 38/42 at $160. Raw Cotton has been taken to the extent of 495 bales Bombay staple at $21.25 to $24.00 and 225 bales Bengal at $17.75 to $20.25.

No. II.

Life in India, as a rule, is inexpressible monotonous, rendered more so perhaps by the exaggeration of our national characteristics—we are doubtless an enterprising people, but we have a bad habit of often overlooking the present for the sake of the future, which may never come to us—and so Englishmen in India, looking upon themselves as sojourners there, and not colonisers, put up with much discomfort, and even risk, which they might easily avoid; and carry about with them those ineradicable social prejudices which make people live next door to each other for a life time yet never exchange a visit, and cause men to travel in the same railway carriage from London to Glasgow without speaking to each other the whole way. In Bombay, for instance, there is as much caste among Europeans as among the Hindoos; and Jones, who is only "honourable" by virtue of his position as a temporary member of Council, would no more ask Brown, who is an assistant in another firm, to dinner, than Mrs. Robinson, the barrister's lady, would visit Mrs. Smith, the contractor's wife.

Bombay has an invaluable advantage over Calcutta and Madras, in the beauty and easy access of her hill stations. The climate of Bombay proper, too, is unquestionably a fine one; which fact, I am sure, ought to bring consolation and comfort to many a fond mother's heart, and, excepting, perhaps, a couple of months in the year, May and October, the heat is very endurable, especially with all the modern inventions to make it so; in fact, what with American ice, patent refrigerators, self-acting punkahs, sanitary improvements, central-fire breech-loaders, pure water and plenty of it, frequent trips home (thanks to the increased celerity of communication), and telegraph cable, India is no longer the bugbear it was fifty years ago, and if a man cannot hope any more to make a colossal fortune in a very short time, at least he may hope to return home with an unbroken constitution and a sound liver.

The griffin—everybody in India is a griffin till he has completed twelve months residence—seldom feels the unusual heat the first year of his arrival, but the longer he remains, the more it becomes sensible, and tells upon his system. The griffin generally goes out to India with preconceived ideas of its customs and its climate; as absurd as they are false, and the result is, very often, that a severe lesson is needed in the shape of illness or misfortune before he will give up his cherished customs, and learn what to eat, drink, and avoid. I have often seen an otherwise sensible man sit down to three heavy meals per diem, washed down with copious draughts of beer or claret cup, and followed by innumerable pegs; and I have thought, when dysentery or diseased liver ensued, how could any other result be anticipated? In fact, an Irishman quaintly remarked once on this very subject, "Sure and they drink themselves to death, and then write to the papers and say it's the climate." People living in India—especially Englishmen—are too apt to carry their old world habits with them, and to forget that wise axiom, "In Rome do as the Romans do." In tropical climes the body requires less nourishment than in more northern latitudes, probably because, for one reason, there is less physical exercise. In southern Europe, in Egypt, in Algeria, in South Africa, say in India itself, we find that the natives require and consume less animal and more vegetable food; a few ounces of rice, a load of bread, dried or fresh fish, a handful of fruit, and a cup of cold water, or their country wine, form the principal aliments of the principal peasantry of warm latitudes; and yet in India, it is a common custom to eat a hearty tiffin, and to sit down to a "burra-khana" or big dinner, of a dozen courses, afterwards; and people who do this expect to keep their health!

It is a sad truth, that European ladies lose their health far more rapidly than men do; and residence in India too often entails frequent, if not constant, separation from wife and children, if, as it too often does, it does not cost separation in an even sadder sense. I attribute much of this result to the habits of English ladies, to the influence of custom, and the stern rules of society, as well as to the influence of climate. A lady is expected to make and receive calls in the very hottest part of the day—a custom that ranks with the absurd time fixed for the season in London; next, a lady has nothing to occupy her mind and thoughts, as at home; lastly, she cannot, I may say almost dare not, take any walking exercise, without which it is impossible to keep well, principally because it is infra dig, and also on account of the great heat. But I shall have something more to say on this when I come to the question of social life in Bombay.

No. III.—BOMBAY.

One of the most striking things in the large Presidency towns of India is the diversity of race and caste and custom among the native population, and nowhere is this so well exemplified as in Bombay; there the Hindoo jostles the Mussulman, the Parsee trades with the Jew, the Persian sells horses to the Giaour, the Christian sits cheek by jowl with the infidel, the Abyssinian slave, black as ink, serves in the same household as the Roman Catholic Portuguese, and the ill-favoured Malay traffics with the child of the Celestial Empire.

Of the million of souls in Bombay, one-half are Hindoos of all castes, from the follower of Buddha and the proud Brahmin to the outcast Mhar, and the still lower Metranee, whose very touch defiles. There are 200,000 Mussulmans, 120,000 Parsees, and the remainder is composed of Indo-Portuguese, South Africans, Malays, Chinese, Persians, and Europeans; the majority of the Hindoos is from the Deccan; Brahmins, Purvoos, Marwarrees, Banians, Bhatties, Sootees—a great number come from Guzerat and Scinde—as a rule they are a handsome, well-made, cleanly race, especially the higher castes; and when quite young, the large black eyes and soft brown skins of the Brahminical people cannot fail to attract admiration. The women when quite young, are handsome, too, but disfigure themselves with the nose ring and the use of the betel nut; their forms and movements are peculiarly graceful, probably arising from the custom of carrying chatties of water on the head; but they grow old looking very soon, and when old are about as ugly specimens of humanity as can well be conceived.

The Hindoos mostly practice cremation, an admirable custom, especially in tropical climates, but it is not pleasant to meet a dead body dressed out in flowers, and scarlet and white muslins, with the face, hands, and feet uncovered, on its way to the burning ground by the sea shore, accompanied by the sound of the tom-tom, sometimes of a bier, and sometimes seated bolt upright in a chair and carried by four bearers—a ghastly sight that it has struck me, the British Government might spare European ladies, who are constantly in danger of meeting with it.

The Hindoo, like the Mahomedan, believes in "Kismet," and proves his belief by declining to get out of your way when driving or riding though a native quarter.

The native town of Bombay, where the coloured population lives, presents about as curious a study as any city in the world; the lanes are mostly irregular, with pavements, and too narrow to allow of more than two carriages passing abreast. The houses, not two of which are alike, are painted blue, yellow, green, with vermilion—blue and yellow predominating.

I will try and describe a street in the native town of Bombay—they are so much alike that one will represent them all:—A number of irregularly built houses, some seven stories high, some but one—old and new—most of them coloured gaudily, especially the Hindoo temples, where an incessant noise of tom-toms is heard; some white as snow, some ornamented with handsome carved woodwork on doors and balconies; here and there a palm tree rearing its graceful and lofty head relieves the effect of the stone and plaster. A gutter runs along each side, reeking with foul streams; a number of cocks and hens, chickens, and ducks, many of them coloured a vivid scarlet or magenta, and causing curious speculations among the griffins who see them for the first time. A host of children, almost as numerous as in a Liverpool or Glasgow back slum, some in a state of nature, some wearing a single garment of rich material, but dirty and foul; the children's heads shaved as clean as their faces, which is saying little, however, for they are generally terribly dirty, though most of them are exceedingly handsome, with large black eyes, and soft regular features. At a window above many be seen a fair Parsee woman, with nothing on her shoulders save a flimsy lace vestment, which covers but not conceals, chattering with a neighbour in the street; while below, a wretched looking Fakir or Goosein, his thin body covered with white ashes, bawls out his harsh prayer for charity; near him three or four hungry Pariah dogs growl over a fleshless bone, while half-a-dozen vampire-looking crows and ravens are engaged in a horrid meal off a dead Bandicoot. In an open shop, on one side, some Moslems sit cross-legged on dirty carpets, and pass round in grave silence the hubble-bubble or hand-hookah, at which each one takes only one or two whiffs, while opposite, a number of nude Banians dispute the cost of a piece of grey shirtings, which one of them is showing; and a sweetmeat seller hawks from house to house about as apparently nauseous a compound as it was ever my fortune to see. Such is the ordinary every day aspect of a street in the native part of Her Majesty's Second City, in the year 1868. I forbear to notice the sweet perfumes that prevail everywhere, for after all, they are no whit worse than what we find at Naples, Rome, Cologne, and very often in that boasted Elysium, magnificent Paris.

The creed of each house-owner in India is easily recognisable, for the mansion of the Semi-European Parsee differs completely from that of the wealthy Banian or Mahomedan, and to the follower of the Prophet must be awarded the palm for dirt and filthiness, as that for cleanliness and taste to the Zoroastrian.

Natives are fond of light; Heaven has given them a fair share of the sun in the day time, and tropical nights are as bright and beautiful as they are often enjoyable; but the native hates darkness, and his greatest ambition is to decorate his private house with as many lustres and chandeliers, lamps and candles, as he can put into it—an extravagance of illumination which is not without a charm and originality.
